

Office Space Which Will Change Your Business

The working environment plays a crucial role in determining the productivity and motivation of the employees. This business seminar introduced the latest trends and the recent development when it comes to choosing the right office space for a company, creating an environment of cooperation, functionality and efficiency.

As Generation Y is slowly becoming dominant in the workforce, employers are fully realizing its specific needs, which also include an inspiring and functional working environment. However, experts from CBRE analyzed all other factors which come into play and identified the key trends in office space that every employer must take into account.

The program also featured the award ceremony of the OFFICE OF THE YEAR competition, held in Slovakia for the first time.
